2007 Pineapple Crop in Short Supply

Dole reports that the pineapple crop indicators and other factors are teaming up to make 2007 one of the toughest supply years in the pineapple market. The Thai summer crop is predicted to be 40% below that of 2006. This is due to a lack of rainfall and diversion of the planting areas for sugar. Farmers went 115 days without rainfall in the autumn of 2006 only to be flooded by torrential rains during the winter months. Unfortunately, demand for pineapple increased concurrently with Maui's exit from the market.

Dole is also forecasting that 2008 will be a tight pineapple crop year. Tisdale advises contacting us with your pineapple needs as soon as possible.

Don't forget about the other fruits that Dole Frozen Foods offer — Peaches, IQF Pineapple, Apricots, Frozen Banana, and more. Contact Tisdale for samples, spec sheets, and product brochures.

Refined Peanut Oil Offers Culinary Advantages

With health and nutrition such a big issue in the food industry, the good news is that peanut oil is naturally high in healthy fat and low in bad saturated fat. Nutrition studies indicate that peanut oil lowers total and bad LDL cholesterol similar to that of olive oil.

Refined peanut oil applications include snack food and fast foods frying, sauté cooking oil, salad dressing, and for use in peanut butters and peanut butter variegates.

Golden Peanut Company has refined peanut oil in addition to roasted aromatic peanut oils, peanut extract and their full line of partially defatted peanut flours. Contact Tisdale for product brochures, samples, and any other formation.

Refined peanut oil has a long list of attributes: Trans fat free, cholesterol free, allergen free, pleasant flavor, high smoke point, non-GMO, liquid at room temperature, and no flavor carryover.
